THE PURPOSE OF A RESUME

Most students' reaction to starting a resume is sheer panic! We understand this, and have prepared this Guidebook to help ease your fears and concerns.

A resume is a way to show an employer what you have accomplished in the way of your education, work history, honors and awards, extra-curricular activities, and community service. Your resume highlights other types of skills as well, such as leadership, computer, and communication skills.

- Your Goal: To search for a job while showcasing which skills and qualifications you have to offer employers.
- Employer's Goal: To find a person with the right skills to fill a particular job opening. The employer will review all available resumes, comparing the qualifications of all candidates with the job's requirements, in order to find the right candidate.

Both goals – yours and the employer's – are achieved when you submit your resume to the employer. Your goal is to locate employers and inform them of your qualifications. The employer's goal is to fill the position with a suitable candidate.

The purpose of your resume, then, is to give the employer written evidence of your qualifications.

Your completed resume presents to the employer how your qualifications fit the requirements of the job in which you are interested.

The Bottom Line?

Your resume sells the employer on granting you an interview - the interview gets you the job!

One Last Question...What is a C.V.?

What is a C.V. or Curriculum Vitae, and how is it different from a resume? Unlike a resume, which is used for job seekers in business and industry, a CV is for job seekers with extensive academic and professional credentials applying for any of the following: academic or research positions, grant proposals, speaking engagements, admission to graduate school, professional association acceptance, or leadership positions. It is detailed, lengthy (sometimes as long as twenty pages), and features a structured listing of education, publications, projects, awards and work history.

CREATING A PROFESSIONAL RESUME

A few quick thoughts before you begin:

- A resume used to attain an internship or a professional summer job will look much different than a resume created upon graduation for the professional world.
- Making an impression on the employer takes about 15 seconds.
- Attempt to keep the resume as concise as possible, depending on your major, experience, and activities.
- Stay focused on your skills, and use action phrases to define your job responsibilities (see sample Power Words on pages 6-7).
- Appearance is essential! Proper spacing, margins, and headings display professionalism.
- Make sure all words are spelled correctly.
- Keep it formal. Spell out all words. Use high-quality printing paper.
- Be certain all information is accurate; Never lie or stretch the truth on your resume.
- Use a resume format that is professional and comfortable for you.

See Sample Resumes starting on page 41

HEADING

Begin at the beginning! Employers want to know who you are. For the heading:

- Your name gets centered at the top of the page (avoid using a nickname).
- List your temporary or campus address, e-mail, and phone number at the left margin, and your permanent or home address, e-mail, and phone number toward the right margin.
- If you have just one address, center it under your name.

QUALIFICATIONS PROFILE

You'll complete this section when you are almost finished with your education – usually during the last semester of your graduating year. You will review your various Misericordia University experiences in order to focus on the special skills and qualifications you acquired. Experiences you will review include such activities as leadership, teaching, community service, marketing or business strategies, sports activities, public speaking, theater, work study, patient care, internships, summer or part-time jobs, child care, research projects, healthcare administration, or technology. You'll then consolidate the information into a "skills-oriented" set of phrases (See page 8 for more in-depth information).

OBJECTIVE

Clearly indicate: (1) The type of job you are looking for, such as a summer internship, a part-time job, a full-time position in your field

(2) The specific job title if known

(3) The work setting, such as a publishing firm, a school, or rehabilitation hospital

(4) Your own personal skills such as group facilitation, communication or listening skills.

Note: If you state your objective in your cover letter, you may omit the Objective from your resume.

EDUCATION

The first line should include – in bold - the degree you are completing, along with any minors, certifications, or specializations. Then - removing the bold - list the full college name, the city and state and pending graduation date. You can also include your GPA (if above a 3.0), any relevant research, published works, or other experience related accomplishments.

EMPLOYMENT AND/OR PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

This section should begin with your current (or most recent) employment, and can include full-time, part-time, temporary, or community service. You can use any job market preparatory experience at college, such as work study, tutoring, resident assistant, as well as internships, field work, or clinical experiences.

Start by listing – in bold – the title of your most recent job. Then – removing the bold – add in the employer, city and state, and the dates of employment. Next, outline your job responsibilities for the job (see sample Power Words on pages 6-7).

OTHER CATEGORIES

You can choose other types of categories, such as academic honors, scholarships, leadership, sports awards, community service, certifications or licensure, military activities, student organizations, any publications or class presentations, computer/technology training, second language, and research and master's thesis projects.

REFERENCES

References are people who can verify your school accomplishments and/or your work ethics. Select 3-4 references such as previous employers, internship supervisors, college professors or advisors, or work study supervisors who can speak highly of you to potential employers. You should contact each reference in advance and ask for a letter of recommendation. In addition, giving them a copy of your resume will help when employers call them for information. Make a complete list of references on a separate page, with each person's name, title, employer, city and state, and daytime phone number.

Note: There is a recent trend in resume writing to omit the statement "References – Available upon Request," as many believe it is stating the obvious, not to mention superfluous. The choice is up to you. But if you should choose to omit it, remember that you are still required to have 3-4 references who can speak positively on your behalf as is mentioned above.

See Appendix C for Sample Resumes

See Appendix D for a Sample Reference Page

USING EFFECTIVE "Power" WORDS

The purpose of using power words on your resume and in your cover letter is to identify skills you have acquired. The following "sentence starters" should get you started in describing work you have done. Select words that exactly describe what you want employers to know about you. Circle all that apply to you:

DEVELOPING A PERSONAL "QUALIFICATIONS PROFILE"

If a hiring manager chose to read only one section of your resume, this would be it! Also known as a Professional Summary, this is a 3 to 4 sentence "sales pitch" that should grab the attention of the employer by highlighting your skills, values, interests, professional achievements, and outcomes.

Usually completed near the end of your education, the Qualifications Profile is a great place to include information stated in the job description such as keywords and job requirements. This is especially important since your resume may only get five seconds of the hiring manager's attention or if you are applying at a large company which can receive up to 2,000 resumes a day. This is also crucial when you are submitting a resume online where it will be subject to an electronic word-scan.

The Qualifications Profile can be written as 3-4 sentences or as a bulleted list and is sometimes easier to create after writing the rest of your resume. Regardless of when it is written, you will need to re-work it for each position you pursue.

Not sure how to go about creating one? Try these tips below to help inspire you:

- Ask co-workers, friends, or family members what they feel are your strongest and best professional qualities. Write them down and notice if you see any patterns in what they say.
- One of the challenges of writing your Qualifications Profile can be remembering what you have actually done in the past. Some people find that looking at a list of power words can spark their memory, so use the list of power words on pages 6-7 to do just that; jot down the words that apply to your experiences and use those when constructing your profile.
- Finally, as mentioned above, save this section until after you have created the rest of your resume. That way, you will have your best, most applicable experiences fresh in your mind!
- Check out these five examples below:

EXAMPLES

WRITING INTRIGUING COVER LETTERS

The Purpose of a Cover Letter

A cover letter is very important, if not as important as a resume. While a cover letter provides additional information to the employer about your resume, employers will often use a cover letter to judge whether you are an effective communicator, pay attention to detail, and possess sufficient writing skills.

Like your resume, a cover letter should use key words and be customized to each position you are pursuing. It should convey that you have researched the company to which you are sending it, and it should be proof-read over and over by yourself and others so that there are no spelling or grammatical errors.

Again, the importance of a cover letter cannot be stressed enough; in a survey of 150 executives from the nation's 1,000 largest companies, 60 percent of those responding said the cover letter is either as important as or more important than the resume.

Start with a Contact Person

You may see a posting for a position in the want ads of a newspaper, on a web site, or in the Insalaco Center for Career Development office. Or, you may have spoken to someone who thinks a position may be available. Or, you may simply like the company and wish to apply.

It is best to address your letter to a particular person, so be sure to address your cover letter to the "contact person" mentioned by the job advertisement, web site, or person who referred you to the position. However, if a name is not available, you can always try calling the company itself (try the Human Resources Department or reception staff) and ask for a name (and proper spelling).

The Salutation to the Contact Person

If you absolutely cannot find the name of a contact person, you may use "Dear Hiring Manager," "Dear Search Committee" or the like. "To Whom It May Concern" and "Dear Sir or Madam" may be perceived as passé or generic in today's job market, but they are acceptable as well.

Overall Format

You should use business format for your cover letter. Everything should be flushed left with one-inch margins all around.

First provide your own address (sans your name), then skip a line and provide the date. Skip a line again and provide the name, title and address of the contact person. Avoid using abbreviations if possible, and if you are using letterhead that already displays your address, do not repeat that information; just begin with the date.

Skip a line before the salutation and follow it with a colon. Skip a line to begin your first paragraph, and skip one line between your paragraphs. After the last paragraph, skip a line and write your salutation (usually Sincerely, or Yours Truly,) followed by a comma, then skip three lines and type your name. Use a black pen to sign in the space above your name.

The 1st Paragraph

This is your opening paragraph where you want to state why you are writing. Identify the position for which you are applying, and mention how you heard about this position. You also want to mention why you are interested in this job.

The 2nd and 3rd Paragraphs

In this section, be sure to give some idea of who you are (i.e. senior business student at Misericordia University, an intern at your clinic). Specifically explain why you are interested in this position/type of job and company. Identify one or two of the strongest points on your resume and be sure to relate how these strong points are significant to the job you are seeking.

Additionally, show how your education and experience fit the requirements of the position by using examples from your resume and let them know what you can contribute to the organization. Finally, you should mention your graduation date in this section, so they are aware of when you will be available to start.

In Closing

The employer's time is valuable! Always express your appreciation for the time they are spending in reviewing your resume. Be sure to politely request an interview with them and refer them to your resume and/or any other enclosed documents. Let them know that you look forward to hearing from them in the future and how you can be reached – include your phone number and a time they can reach you to further discuss your qualifications.

Then, beneath your signature, type your name and “Enclosure” to alert them that your resume accompanies your letter.

Enclose your resume, but not your References page, unless specifically requested.

See Appendix B for Sample Cover Letters.

JOB/INTERNSHIP SEARCH

Looking for a job/internship can be a full-time occupation. It's not something you do a little today and some more next week. If you want a good job/internship, you have to work at getting it. Plan to work every day by researching, talking, networking, thinking, reading, mailing, calling, interviewing, following-up, and deciding. Use all of the resources available to you: faculty, your friends, the mail, the phone, newspapers, the Internet, and the ICCD.

DETERMINE YOUR CAREER GOAL

The first step in the job/internship search is to determine "what is your career goal?" For example, if you are majoring in marketing, are you interested in sales or public relations or advertising? If you are a physical therapy major are you interested in working with sports rehabilitation or hand therapy? Now is also the time to think about what values (family, money, travel) are important to you. You will want to seek an employer with similar values.

NARROW THE SEARCH TO A GEOGRAPHIC AREA

Narrowing down the geographic area in which you would like to live can greatly help you focus your search. If the area in which you are searching is too large, your search can become overwhelming. The following websites can assist you in determining the best city for you:

Bestplaces.net www.bestplaces.net Profiles of 1,000 cities in 30 categories, including housing, cost of living, crime, education, economy, health and climate.

City Link www.usacitylink.com Links to city home pages.

City Search www.citysearch.com Links to major cities in the United States plus links to international cities as well. Also links to information about movies and local events.

Money Online's Best Places to Live money.cnn.com Online guide offers information on 300 cities, a cost of living calculator, and a city assessment calculator that helps you choose the right city based on 63 factors. (Best Places is located under the "Personal Finance" tab.)

Salary.com www.salary.com Online software tools personalized to help you get the best salary for your skills. This site features a salary wizard, personalized salary reports, job searches, and newsletters.

State and Sales Taxes www.aicpa.org/yellow/yptstax.htm These links will take you to the tax revenue offices for each state.

SEARCH PROCESS

Securing a job/internship is a numbers game. Statistically, you should expect a five to six percent success rate. So, if you market yourself to 20 employers at one time, you should land one interview! Marketing does not necessarily mean sending resumes. It could also mean talking with friends and family or talking with employers who come on campus to recruit. Below is a list to help you organize your job/internship search.

1. Develop an employer prospect list with contact names and addresses from organizations you are interested in pursuing. Call or look-up on-line the name of the person who has the authority to hire you. Here are some tips for developing your list.

- On-campus recruiting: Visit the Insalaco Center for Career Development to find out which companies are coming onto campus for informational sessions and/or interviewing.
- Network: Networking is developing professional relationships with a group of people to leverage as resources in your job search. By creating this group of contacts, you can become known to people in your field that can provide you with advice, information about the field, or potential opportunities.
 - Ask family, friends, neighbors, faculty, and Misericordia staff if they know of any employers who hire people in your field. Attend local professional association meetings to meet potential employers and network with future colleagues. Join professional groups on-line through sites such as LinkedIn.
 - Contact the employers either via letter or phone call. Be sure to let them know who referred you to them, the reason you are contacting them, and that you would like to set up a time to meet to discuss opportunities within the field you've chosen.
 - Don't misuse these contacts! If you set up an informational interview, do not try to turn it into a hiring interview. The purpose of an informational interview is for you to gain answers to questions about the field/position/company that may help you in the direction of your search.
 - Don't ignore any leads. If someone in your network tells you where there is an opening, put that company on your contact list and go after the job/internship. Act on every tip you get. If you ignore these leads, you're ignoring a possible offer.
- The Internet: There are a variety of web-sites dedicated to job/internship opportunities. You should also visit the website of each company so that you can learn about their products, philosophy, and to check out their employment page.

www.collegecentral.com/miseri
www.nationjob.com

www.careerbuilder.com
www.flipdog.com

- Attend Job Fairs: This is a great way to meet a variety of employers at once.
- Newspaper Help Ads: Use the newspaper to spot which companies are "hiring". It doesn't matter that they aren't advertising for your particular occupation, just that they are hiring people.
- Local Businesses: Check the membership lists of your local Chamber of Commerce.
- Trade Journals: Most journals feature articles and advertisements by or about major companies. Most also have a help-wanted section.
- Temporary Agencies: Add a few temp agencies to your list. Often they will have temp-to-perm positions available.

2. Write a custom letter to each person who has the authority to hire you and ask for an interview. Mail or submit your letters and resume on-line. Be sure to research each company before sending in your cover letter and resume so that you can tailor the documents to the company and position to which you are applying. Try to locate basic information about the company such as its age, service or products, competitors, mission statement, size, number of locations, foreign operations, assets, and earnings.

3. Allow a few days for your materials to be received. Plan to call the company on the day after your cover letter and resume would arrive. You want to verify that your resume was received and ask for an interview. In the meantime, network with other potential employers, answer the newspaper help-wanted advertisements, and get a jump on the next opportunities you would like to pursue.
4. Follow-up on all applications and keep a record of the status.
5. Evaluate offers and accept one.

INTERVIEW PREPARATION AND FOLLOW-UP

For many of us, just the thought of going to an interview with an employer sends chills down our spines. But – look at it this way – an interview is your best chance to show the employer your qualifications.

Think - you've worked hard throughout the last several years of college to prepare just for this day. An interview is a way you can tell the employer just how valuable you are, and just how you can fit into their company!

Begin by considering what employers want to see and hear. You can show that you are highly motivated by learning about the company before the interview, by dressing in professional, business attire, and by being well-mannered.

How do you do that? Preparation!

Beforehand

- Know the exact time and place of the interview. Get directions. Write it down – don't rely on your memory. Ask who will be conducting the interview. Know how to pronounce each person's name.
- Arrive at least 10-15 minutes early. This shows the employer that promptness is one of your values. It also gives you time to relax before the interview.
- Do a lot of research about the company. How old is it? What products or services does it provide? Talk with people employed there, or who are familiar with it, for any insight they may have. Think hard about what you can offer them.
- Dress appropriately. This shows the employer that you are professional:

For Men: Wear a dark-colored (such as navy blue, gray, brown, or pin-striped) business suit and tie, with either a white or pastel-colored shirt and polished shoes.

For Women: Wear either a neutral-colored dress, or a dark-colored (such as burgundy, navy blue, or brown) business suit, with skirt or slacks, either a white or pastel-colored blouse, and shoes with low heels that allow you to walk with ease.

For both: Be aware that the interviewer may take you for a tour of the office - or the entire building!

- Bring at least 5 copies of your resume on good bond paper, as well as 5 copies of your References Page. It may surprise you to learn that you may be interviewed by more than one person. Bring an extra copy for you to use during the interview.
- Bring a pen or pencil. Putting everything in a portfolio (a colored folder) makes you look professional and organized to the employer.
- Bring your appointment calendar, in case the employer wants to schedule a second interview with you.
- Know your resume! Review your qualifications and experience, so that you are comfortable speaking about yourself. Practice, practice, practice!

At the interview

- Greet the employer with a smile and a handshake. Introduce yourself by stating your full name, and tell them that you're pleased to be there. This demonstrates your communications skills to the employer. Be sure to maintain good eye contact.
- Relax! It's normal to be a little nervous, and employers expect it. Rest your hands either on your lap or on the table with your resume. Be aware of your body language; including your tone of voice and posture.
- Be prepared to answer typical questions employers ask of all applicants. Try answering them with a career counselor or a friend at home first.
- Answer questions honestly. Concentrate on the positive aspects of any given situation. Remember to get your good points across to the employer. Don't answer just by saying yes or no; but don't talk too much. Employers are judging you by your reaction to questions, as their way of gaining knowledge about you.
- If questions reflect negative aspects in your life, don't try to cover it up. Explain the circumstances surrounding your answer, and tell how you solved the problem, or what you learned from the experience. Remember - they are expecting you to tell success stories - even when the situation is not ideal.
- Don't criticize – Don't put down previous employers, co-workers or peers.
- Your strategy here is to concentrate on the job, and your ability to do it - no matter what the question seems to be asking. Discuss ways you can contribute to the organization. Let the interviewer know you can meet a need or solve a problem.
- Finally, be prepared to ask questions of the employer, specifically, what attributes they are seeking in an employee for the position. This shows your interest in the company, the job itself, and in working for them.

At the end of the interview

Be prepared to ask follow-up questions. You should also express an interest in what the next step will be:

- Ask the employer if they would like a copy of your References page. Provide it to them at this time.
- Ask when the final hiring decision will be made. If you need to contact them, you can call them in a week or so. Write it down in your appointment calendar.
- End on a positive note. Let the employer know that you are interested in the position, and point out why you will be a good choice to fill it.
- If you are offered the job, you should feel free to request a few days for consideration of the offer before accepting or rejecting it.
- Ask for business cards from everyone you interviewed with. This way you will be sure you address your thank-you letters appropriately.
- Finally - always remember to shake hands and smile, and let the employer know how much you appreciate the time they spent with you.

After the interview

- Make notes of what went well, and what you would like to improve.
- Send a follow-up letter (called a "Thank you" letter) to the employer, thanking them for the time they spent with you, and expressing continued interest in working for them.
- If you haven't heard from the employer within a few weeks, you can call them to express continued interest in the position.
- If the position was filled with another applicant, don't sound discouraged. Thank the employer again for their consideration of you. You can also request that you be considered for other positions available within the company in the near future.

Remember - someone is going to hire you! It might be the person you just talked with!

DISCLOSING A DISABILITY

Under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), people with disabilities are not obligated to disclose their disability unless it is likely to directly affect their job performance. Some companies and organizations have job and/or internship programs that specifically seek students with disabilities. If you apply for a position through one of these programs, you will need to disclose your disability in order to qualify.

Rules for a good disclosure:

1. Script your disclosure. Prepare for what you might disclose: Examine your feelings about your disability; how comfortable you are with discussing it; identify accommodations you may need; and weigh the advantages and disadvantages of disclosing your disability.
2. Rehearse your disclosure script.
3. Avoid being too detailed. The interviewer wants to know 3 things: will you be there; can you do the job as well or better than anyone else; will you be of value to the company?
4. Be positive about your skills and abilities.

What to include in a disclosure:

1. General information about your disability.
2. The effect of your disability, both positive and negative, on job performance.
3. The types of accommodations used in the past.
4. Suggested or anticipated accommodations.

Timing your disclosure: *Keep in mind that some potential employers will be comfortable with your disability disclosure and some won't. What is more important is that you conduct an effective job search and find positions and employers that are a good fit for you.

1. Resume/Cover Letter – There is rarely a reason to disclose your disability this early unless the disability may be an asset to the position. The resume and cover letter should focus on and highlight your relevant skills and experiences.
2. Pre-Interview – If you have a visible disability or need accommodations for the interview, then discuss your disability prior to the interview so that the interviewer is prepared.
3. The Interview – Briefly discuss your disability and assure the interviewer that it will not negatively affect your job performance, especially with proper accommodations. Be prepared to answer any questions, and provide examples of how you have already performed many functions of the job. Focus on competency.
4. After being offered the job – Discuss it prior to your start date to ensure accommodations are made prior to your arrival.
5. During the course of employment – If you underestimated your need for accommodation, ask for accommodations before your work performance is affected.
6. You may decide that disclosure is not necessary. Be sure you can perform the essential functions of the position before accepting it.

ACCEPTING OR DECLINING A JOB OFFER

- When an employer hires you, you will be notified either by telephone or by mail. It is important that you verify with the employer their job offer to you by telephone and with a letter accepting or declining the job.
- An employer may send you a letter of rejection if they choose another candidate. In this case, it is still important that you send a letter acknowledging that decision, and requesting that the employer keep your resume under consideration, should another position become available in the near future with their company.
- Some employers may require you to sign a contract when accepting a job offer. This confirmation is often legally binding. Be sure to read the contract carefully. If there is anything that you do not understand, do not hesitate to ask questions. Do not review the contract alone. A trusted friend or relative may notice something you overlooked.
- If you are not required to sign a contract, be sure to follow up your verbal acceptance with a letter stating information about the job such as job title, location, start date, salary, and benefits.

Common Questions Employers Ask During Interviews

Questions to Ask the Employer

Behavioral Interviewing / Questions List

Salary Negotiation

COMMON QUESTIONS EMPLOYERS ASK DURING INTERVIEWS (and what they mean)

- Tell me about yourself.
This is the time to expand on your resume. Consider explaining to the employer how your college education and internship experience has prepared you for the job for which you are applying.
- Why do you want to work for this company?
Review with the employer some of the reasons you believe this company would be the best place to apply the skills you have acquired.
- Why did you choose this career?
- What are the most important rewards you expect from your career?
You can mention how your background or events in your life have sparked an interest in the job for which you are applying.
- What are your long-term goals? Short-term goals?
Discuss your future employment plans; for example - returning to school for a graduate degree, managing a department, or advancing to a higher level in the organization.
- Why should I hire you?
Talk about how your education, experience, skills and qualifications makes you the best choice for the job. Give some examples from your work experience, college internships, or club activities.
- What is your major strength?
- Describe yourself in three adjectives.
Give examples on your best characteristics, and make it job-related.
- What is your major weakness?
Here, you can mention that you have a lot to learn. You can also cite a difficult situation you had to face or a mistake you have made in the past. Just be sure to follow it up with a positive outcome such as the specific skills you gained from facing the situation or the valuable lessons you learned from the mistake that can be applied to your future career.
- Describe your work style. Describe your leadership style.
- How would you handle a disagreement with a boss or co-worker?
- Tell me about a recent problem you encountered, and how you handled it.
- How do you think a friend or professor who knows you well would describe you?
- Are you a team player, or an individualist? Have you dealt with difficult people?
- Describe a contribution you made in a recent job or internship.
Employers want to know if you can work under pressure – and if you know when to ask for help. For each of these questions, this is where you can explain to the employer how well you work with others – supervisors, team members, clients, or patients. If a conflict, tell how you resolved it, using specific examples from such areas as your campus or personal experience, internship, clinical experience, or field work.
- Would you be willing to relocate?
This is not always a yes or no question. Let the employer know if you are willing to relocate to another area of the country, or how far from home you are willing to travel.
- What salary do you expect?
This is where your ability to negotiate comes in. Should the employer bring up this question, let them know a range in salary you are willing to accept, based on current labor market information and the job for which you are applying. Ask also if there is a chance of an increase in salary with future evaluations of you once you are hired.
- Is there anything on your resume you would like to discuss that has not been covered?
At this time, you will be able to mention items on your resume which you believe are important for your consideration for the job. Talk about your leadership activities, for example.

QUESTIONS TO ASK THE EMPLOYER

An interview is a two-way conversation - between the employer and you! You need to learn more about the position to determine whether or not you want the job.

Employers are impressed with questions that reflect interest in knowing more about the company or the position being discussed. Some questions you can discuss with the employer to successfully determine if this job is for you are listed below.

- What are the job requirements?
- What are you looking for in the person who will fill this job?
- What are the normal work hours?
- What training programs are offered?
- What is the evaluation procedure? How often can I expect to be evaluated?
- What advancement opportunities are available within the company?
- To whom would I report? Is it possible to meet this person?
- What is the greatest challenge of this position?
- Does the company have plans for new products or services?

You might notice that, unless the employer brings it up, questions about salary and benefits should not be asked of employers during the first interview.

Your focus should be on the company and what you can do for it, not what it will pay you. The salary range may be given when you first inquire about the job, and benefits information will be available from the Human Resources Department. Once you have been offered the job, you can discuss and negotiate salary and benefits.

Behavioral Interviewing / Questions List

What is Behavioral Interviewing?

Behavioral Interviewing is a new style of interviewing that more and more organizations are using in their hiring process. The basic premise behind behavioral interviewing is this: the most accurate predictor of future performance is past performance in a similar situation. It focuses on experiences, behaviors, knowledge, skills and abilities that are job related. Traditional interviewing is much more probing and works very differently.

Critical Points About Behavioral Interviewing

Employers predetermine which skills are necessary for the job for which they are looking and then ask very pointed questions to determine if the candidate possesses those skills. To assess which skills the employer seeks, review employer literature, speak with alumni, family and friends who work for the employers, and listen carefully during the organization's information session.

Preparing for a behavioral interview will give you an advantage even if the interviewer is not utilizing the behavioral interview process. We recommend using the STAR Method when formulating your answers to help you include the most important aspect and positive results of your experiences.

STAR Method

Situation: give an example of a situation you were involved in that resulted in a positive outcome

Task: describe the tasks involved in that situation

Action: talk about the various actions involved in the situation's task

Results: what results followed because of your actions

Interview Questions

1. Describe a situation in which you were able to use persuasion to successfully convince someone to see things your way.
2. Describe an instance when you had to think on your feet to remove yourself from a situation.
3. By providing examples, convince me that you can adapt to a wide variety of people, situations and environments.
4. Give me a specific occasion in which you conformed to a policy with which you did not agree.

Interview Questions (continued)

5. Give me an example of an important goal which you set in the past and tell me about your success reaching it.
6. Tell me about a time when you had to go above and beyond the call of duty in order to get the job done.
7. What is your typical way of dealing with conflict? Give an example.
8. Tell me about a time when you delegated a project effectively.
9. Tell me about a time when you missed an obvious solution to a problem.
10. Describe a time when you anticipated potential problems and developed preventative measures.
11. Tell me about a time when you were forced to make an unpopular decision.
12. Describe the biggest challenge you've had in your last job, internship, or field placement and how you handled it.
13. Tell me about a situation when you had to learn something new in a short time. How did you do this?
14. Give us an example of a situation in which you had to use your leadership skills. How would you describe your leadership style?
15. Summarize a situation where you had to generate a new idea or suggestion at work or school and tell me about how you got this idea implemented.
16. How have you most constructively dealt with disappointment and turned it into a learning experience?
17. Describe a situation where you had to work with a difficult boss, professor or other person. How did you successfully interact with this person?

SALARY NEGOTIATION

Most new graduates find that talking about salary is one of the most uncomfortable things about the interviewing process. But it doesn't have to be. As long as you know how and when to approach the topic of money, you'll be ready for when the question inevitably comes up: How much are you looking for?

When to talk about salary?

Most career advisors suggest that you steer clear of salary talk until after you have received a job offer; this is generally the case in most situations especially if you are new to your career or are in a really competitive job market. That way, once you have sold the employer on your qualifications, you are in a better position to talk money.

The other belief is that you should ask what the salary range is for a position right up front so that you don't waste your (or the interviewer's) time if the range is too low. This is usually only the case if you are accomplished in your career field and have many years in that field under your belt; you know what your minimum worth is and do not wish to go below a certain level.

How much money should I ask for?

Believe it or not, employers want you to receive an equitable salary. After all, they are spending thousands of dollars to recruit and train you; it just isn't in their best financial interest for you to quit after a year because you cannot live on your salary. So before you talk about salary with a potential employer, you need to calculate what starting pay will actually work for you in the long run.

You can figure out your salary requirements by making a list of your expenses and figuring out what you will need to live on for a year. Expenses to consider: Rent or mortgage, monthly food expenses, entertainment expenses, clothing, utilities, car loans and estimated gas and insurance expenses, doctor bills, prescriptions, vet bills and pet food, retirement contributions, vacations, student loans, taxes, emergency funds, and whatever else you can think of.

You will also need to find out what a typical salary is in your field and your geographic location. This information can be found on-line and elsewhere. Some possible places to start include: The Bureau of Labor Statistics (www.bls.gov), Career InfoNet: Wages and Trends (www.acinet.org), JobStar.org, newspapers and magazines, and friends and family within the same field.

Finally, when considering salary requirements, don't forget to take into account the fringe benefits like health insurance, vacation time, annual salary review, retirement savings plans, bonus plans, college tuition reimbursement plans, stock options, and the like.

Let the Negotiating Begin

One of the most important things to remember with salary negotiations is that you should try to get the employer to state their salary range first. Even if they ask you "What are your salary requirements?" it is best to respond with "What is the salary range for the position?" That way, you'll have a good idea where they are coming from.

But if they are persistent that you state your requirements first, make sure you come prepared with a figure in mind.

You also want to come prepared with your statistics, past salary history (never lie about this), and all of your pertinent research (neatly typed or organized) that supports your salary request.

Dress the part; you must look like you are worth the salary you are requesting, so make sure you look nice, neat and professional! Finally, when an offer is made, never accept it right then and there. Tell them that you would like 24 hours to think about it and that you will call them. And lastly, if you do accept an offer, get it in writing!

Examples

Below are some examples of possible scenarios you might encounter during the salary negotiation process. After all, it never hurts to have some pre-conceived responses prepared, especially if you are not fully comfortable or experienced in salary negotiation:

Scenario #1 – Beginning the Negotiations

Company: "What are your salary requirements?"

You:

Option #1: "I was actually going to ask you that as well. What is the salary range for the position?"

Option #2: "Of course salary issues are important to me, but at this time, I would prefer if we focus on whether or not I'm the right person for your position and whether the job and company are the right fit for me. Once we determine if I'm the right person, I'm sure that we can come up with a salary amount that would be suitable for both of us. Does that sound ok?"

Usually this approach will deter the salary discussions, but if it doesn't and the employer presses you for an answer, try the following:

You:

Option #1: "Considering my expenses and some of the research I've done for local (starting) salaries in this field, I'm looking for a salary range of $30,000 to $40,000. Does that sound reasonable?"

Option #2 good response if no interviewing has taken place yet: "Well, depending on the company, the job, and the responsibilities of the position, I'm looking for a salary range between $30,000 to $40,000."

Scenario #2 – Offer is too low

Company: "We are prepared to offer you a salary of $25,000 a year."

You:

Option #1: "I'm happy that you are interested in me, and I am very interested in the position. Based on my experience and on the expenses I'll have when I graduate like paying off my student loan and buying a car, I would like to be making between $30,000 to $40,000. Does that sound feasible?"

Option #2: "This looks like a great opportunity, and I know that I have a lot to offer ABC corporation, but I have several other opportunities that are in the $30,000 to $40,000 range (don't say this unless it's true) is there a way we could work this out?"

Option #3: "I'm out of school now and on my own and really need between $30,000 to $40,000 as a minimum. Is there a way we can work that out? I love the opportunity and would love to work here if I can get that number. What do you think?"

121 South 4th Street
Lockwood, PA 19103

April 20, 2010

Ms. Carol Henry, Human Resources Manager
Family Company Business, Inc.
120 Northwest 8th Street
Scranton, PA 19103

Dear Ms. Henry:

Last fall, I performed a ten-week internship at your clinic under the guidance of Carol Strong. I gained such tremendous experience and learned so much that I would like to be considered for a full time physical therapy position in your Scranton clinic.

In May 2010, I will complete my Master of Science degree in Physical Therapy. The program at Misericordia University is intensive, and gave me hands on experience through labs and internships. While performing my internship at your clinic, I improved my evaluation skills as well as my ability to treat a variety of diagnoses including tendonitis, back pain, headaches, and peripheral neuropathy. I became familiar with your documentation techniques and was able to work closely with your staff. Your skillful staff was wonderful to work with, and I would welcome the opportunity to join your therapy team.

I am confident my skills and experience would prove beneficial to your organization, and I look forward to an opportunity to discuss my qualifications with you. I can be reached at 555/555-5555, or you can leave a message on my answering machine. I will return the call promptly. I am currently living in New Jersey but will be relocating to Scranton in August and will be available to start work on August 17.

Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Kinsey J. Thomas

Mr. Carl Felter, Human Resources Manager
ABC Company Business, Inc.
220 Northwest 8th Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103

Dear Mr. Felter:

I am applying for the position of client account coordinator, which was advertised on May 17 at the career services center at Misericordia University. The position seems to fit very well with my education, experience, and career interests.

According to the advertisement, your position requires excellent communication skills, computer literacy, and a B.S. degree in finance or business. I will be graduating from Misericordia University this month with a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration. My studies have included courses in computer science, management information systems, speech communications, and business writing.

I understand the position also requires a candidate who is team and detail oriented, works well under pressure, and is able to interact with people in departments throughout the firm. As you can see on my resume, I was a resident assistant. This position required me to work as part of a team with 20 other RAs as well as handle the pressure of overseeing and disciplining (when necessary) a hall of 60 students. I also did an internship at the accounting firm Kasper and Associates, which not only required me to work with many different departments, but also helped to strengthen my attention to detail.

My background and experience seem to match your requirements well. I am confident that I can perform the job effectively, and am excited about the possibility of working for a dynamic, nationally recognized investment management firm.

I would welcome an opportunity to discuss my qualifications with you further and can be reached at 555-555-5555. If I am not available, please leave a message on my answering machine. I will return your call immediately.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

Kinsey J. Thomas

Dear Ms. Hooper:

I know the Thomas Group seeks only the brightest and most creative individuals for its team. I have over two years of experience working on web design, as well as numerous publications, newspaper ads, and on creating compelling logos. Additionally, my internship with CPS Creative, my B.S. degree in Marketing, and my minor in Internet Media have really taught me how to bring ideas to life in a timely manner and under budget.

The enclosed resume elaborates on the details of my skills and experience, and the accompanying portfolio shows how I have turned concepts into reality.

I would appreciate a chance to meet with you to discuss how I can be a vital part of your operation. You may reach me at 555-555-5555 or via e-mail at kthmas@mail.com. If I am not available, please leave a message, and I will return your call as soon as possible.

New Philadelphia, PA 19103

The first paragraph lists the job you are applying to and where you heard about it. Notice that this is a personal reference. Be sure to name your personal reference.

The second and third paragraph explains how your experience makes you a good candidate for the job.

Dear Ms. Jones:

I was very excited when Mr. Thomas Smith, a family friend who is currently employed at ABB Center, suggested I write to you about the professional case manager position. As someone who is graduating with a degree in social work, I was very intrigued to hear the details of the position. I truly believe that my degree and work experience match your requirements perfectly.

As mentioned above, I will complete my Bachelor Degree in Social Work in May 2011. The program at Misericordia University is intensive and gave me hands on experience through clinical practice and internships. Mr. Smith mentioned that you are seeking someone who works well with children and has worked with the community. As you can see on my resume, I worked in several units including case management for children, lab management, and community management.

Mr. Smith also mentioned that you will require someone who has experience with home visits. I volunteered at the Band Center this past summer where I spent ten weeks observing and assisting case managers during home and office visits. This spring, my work study rotations allowed me the opportunity to assist further and learn how to make decisions regarding future planning and programming for clients.

I am confident my skills and experience fit well with the position and with the overall philosophy of your organization. I would welcome the opportunity to learn more about ABB Center in person and have enclosed my resume for your review.

I can be reached before 9 a.m. and after 5 p.m. at 555/555-5555, or you may leave a message on my answering machine, and I will return the call promptly.

Thank you for your consideration, and I hope to hear from you soon.

I'm applying for the diagnostic medical sonography position in the general radiology department, which was advertised January 2 at the career services center at Misericordia University. I'm interested in being part of a team that works in an outpatient and inpatient facility to provide a challenging career in sonography.

I will complete my Certificate in Sonography in March 2009. I intend to become ARDMS in abdominal and ob/gyn. exams six months post-graduation. The Misericordia University CAAHEP accredited sonography program has provided me hands on scanning experience through lab and clinical rotations. I have experience in assisting in interventional procedures and general exams. I desire a facility that will enhance my vascular sonography skills.

I am confident my clinical experiences have provided me with the training and scanning skills needed for me to perform and follow protocols in general sonography exams and procedures at your facility. I would appreciate a chance to meet with you and discuss my qualifications. I can be reached at 555-555-5555.

Ms. Sarah Smith
Director of Personnel
ABC School District
Wilmington, DE 19805

Dear Ms. Smith:

Please accept my letter of application for the position of biology teacher at ABC School District. With my major in biology and secondary teaching certificate, I am particularly interested in utilizing my skills and knowledge in a secondary setting.

My student teaching experience has enabled me to develop a special rapport with the age group that I enjoy most: high school students. As co-advisor of the Biology Club during my student teaching practicum, I also gained administrative and organizational skills that enhanced my perspective and my commitment to the extra-curricular component of the secondary school experience.

As a student at Misericordia University, I have excelled academically and worked part-time as an aide in the biology lab assisting students and faculty, where I further developed my interpersonal and communication skills.

I am especially interested in the ABC School District because of its demonstrated commitment to quality education, as evidenced by the favorable student/faculty ratio and state-of-the-art classroom technology.

I would appreciate the opportunity to speak with you regarding the Biology Department position. Thank you for your consideration. I look forward to hearing from you.

Dear Mr. Washington:

Philadelphia Freedom's reputation as a first class organization has inspired me to contact you regarding possible employment opportunities. I feel I have the potential, the enthusiasm, and the training to step in and immediately make a positive contribution to your organization.

I am a recent graduate of Misericordia University where I have taken specialized courses in sports administration. I have also worked for the past two years on a part-time basis as assistant to the public relations director at Sporting Goods International. My earnings for this position enabled me not only to finance my education, but also to gain valuable experience in communications and in dealing with the sports public.

Through my job, I have been exposed to a variety of public relations problems and have learned how to deal creatively with them. In the absence of a senior executive, I was given complete responsibility for company relations with local recreational groups.

The field of sports has always fascinated me, and I want very much to make it my lifetime occupation. I am willing to take any available position or project in order to become a part of your organization.

Mrs. Carol A. Jones, Human Resources Manager
Sherwin-Williams Inc.
123 Paint Plaza
New Walls, NY 11111

Dear Mrs. Jones:

I was excited to read about the business internship position you have available for the summer of 2009. I have a respectable amount of experience related to sales as well as customer service. In addition to my extensive experience, I have great communication and team leadership skills. My energetic, hardworking, self-motivated, and focused attitude makes me an excellent candidate for this position.

As a student-athlete, I excelled in the classroom and on the court. I have a special talent for making those around me better, not only on the court, but as people. I strongly believe in dedication and commitment, resulting in my success. By constantly doing "the right thing" I learned to lead by example. As my team's captain, I have learned valuable leadership skills that have carried over into my personal life. These are the same skills that will create an advantage for me when working for Sherwin-Williams.

In a formal interview I would be glad to discuss in more detail my experiences and the asset I can become to the daily operations of your organization. I can be reached at 555-555-5555. If I am not available please leave a message and I will return your phone call promptly.

Thank you very much for your consideration. I look forward to hearing from you to arrange an interview.

Helen Hooper, Human Resources Manager
The Thomas Group
864 North Cooper Street
Philadelphia, PA 19103

Dear Ms. Hooper,

I was excited to hear about the job opportunity for an occupational therapist at one of your inpatient rehabilitation programs. I heard about this job opportunity due to the participation of your company in on-campus interviews at Misericordia University. I was immediately intrigued by the importance that The Thomas Group places on ensuring a high quality of care in the process of facilitating independence in their patients. I believe my qualifications and skill set make me an excellent candidate for this position. I will be graduating from Misericordia University in May with a Master of Science Degree in Occupational Therapy, a minor in Psychology, and a specialization certificate in Pediatrics. This has given me a wide scope of knowledge on the many areas that contribute to providing comprehensive and quality patient care. My education and fieldwork experiences have molded me into the friendly, team-oriented, and hardworking professional that I am today. The Thomas Group focuses on helping people in the community to overcome challenges and providing individualized quality care. My strengths in implementing client-centered practice to promote independence and integration into the community make me an asset to promoting the mission of The Thomas Group.

My experiences as a club participant and officer, student-athlete, lab assistant, and peer tutor have given me the leadership and communication skills that are essential to being a productive member of a healthcare team, as well as the ability to build a strong therapeutic relationship with clients. Through my level II fieldwork, I have experience practicing in the inpatient rehabilitation setting, participating as a member of an interdisciplinary team, and evaluating, planning, and implementing occupation-based and client-centered interventions.

Thank you for taking the time to review my resume and consider me for this position. I would like the opportunity to meet with you in person to further discuss a possible future with your company. If you have any additional questions, please contact me at (555) 555-5555. Thank you and I look forward to hearing from you!

October, 12, 2013

Helen Hooper, Human Resources Manager
National Rehabilitation Hospital
864 North Cooper Street
Washington, DC 19103

Dear Ms. Hooper,

I am aware that National Rehabilitation Hospital is a leader in the field for providing both care and service to each person. I also know that National Rehabilitation Hospital seeks only the brightest and most dedicated individuals for its team. It is for those reasons that I am applying for the position of Physical Therapist. I will be graduating from Misericordia University with a Doctor of Physical Therapy degree in Physical Therapy in December 2013, and I plan to sit for the National Physical Therapy Exam in January. I am very excited to begin my career as a physical therapist, and I am particularly interested in the outpatient orthopedic related care that National Rehabilitation Hospital provides.

I am an outgoing, high achiever. While I will be a new graduate, I have already accumulated a variety of successful experiences in the physical therapy field. Many of these experiences are directly related to my formal education, and many are a result from my personal interests in the field.

Specific accomplishments include:

- Participated in team effort that resulted in re-diagnosis of a critical need patient
- Presented in-services on "Body Weight Supported Treadmill Training" and "The Importance of Adaptive Sports and Recreational Activities for Those with Lower Extremity Amputations"
- Participated in several educational in-service presentations on orthotics, prostheses, Wiihab, electrical stimulation, and Parkinson's Disease
- Social/community service spirit exemplified by Peru, Mexico, and Hershey Medical Center volunteerism
- Recipient of several academic and service awards/scholarships which recognize success and challenge personal characteristics

You can see on my resume, I demonstrate many of the values of National Rehabilitation Hospital, including being a team leader in quality of care and service to the community. While I realize that I have yet to graduate, I wanted to ensure in advance that you were aware of my interests in working for National Rehabilitation Hospital.

I would welcome an interview at your convenience to explore how my experience and career interests could benefit National Rehabilitation Hospital and can be reached at 555-555-5555. I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,

States reason for writing and references the position interviewed for.

Dear Ms. Henry:

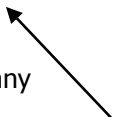

It was a pleasure speaking with you during my interview last week about the Professional Case Manager position with your company. The information you shared about Family Company Business, Inc. was excellent, and I am excited about the possibility of using my education and experience in the position.

The interview confirmed for me how compatible my background, skills, and interests are with the goals of Family Company Business, Inc. My prior experience during my practicum has prepared me take an active role in working with clients and developing strategies to assist them. I am confident that my work will result in positive feedback from the clients.

I would like you to know that I am very much interested in this position. If I can provide you with any additional information, please let me know.

I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Mentions specific skills/experience, how you can contribute to the company's goals, and/or how you will fit in with the company.

Sincerely,

Kinsey J. Thomas

Dear Ms. Henry:

Thank you for your letter dated May 25, 2008 in which you offered me the position of Professional Case Manager with your company.

After considerable thought, I have decided not to accept your offer of employment at this time. This has been a difficult decision for me. However, I feel I have made the correct one for this point in my career.

Thank you for your time, effort, and consideration. Your confidence in me is sincerely appreciated.

Ms. Carol Henry, Human Resources Manager

Dear Ms. Henry:

It was indeed a pleasure meeting with you and your staff last week to discuss your need for a Professional Case Manager. Our time together was most enjoyable and informative.

As I discussed with you during our meeting, I believe one purpose of preliminary interviews is to explore areas of mutual interest, and to assess the fit between the individual and the position. After careful thought, I have decided to withdraw my name from consideration for the position.

My decision is based upon several factors. First, the emphasis on fund raising is certainly needed, but I would prefer more balance in my work activities. Second, the position would require more travel than I am willing to accept, given my other responsibilities at this time.

I want to thank you for interviewing me, and giving me the opportunity to learn about your company. You have a fine staff and facility, and I would have enjoyed working with them.

Best wishes in your search.

Sincerely,

Kinsey J. Thomas

Reference Page

Remember not to submit a reference page with your resume. It should only be submitted to the employer when requested. Three references are usually enough, and early on in your career, you may only be able to procure one professional reference. In that case, an academic reference and a personal reference can fill in as the other two.

No matter who your references are, they should always be able to support your application and talk about your work experiences and skills. Be sure to get permission from those individuals you choose and let them know when you do use their name, so they won't be surprised when contacted by an employer.

Your reference page should follow the format of your resume and should be printed on resume paper. See the examples on the next pages of what your reference page may look like.

APPENDIX E

Non-traditional Student Resumes

IMPORTANT NOTE: These are samples only.

PLEASE DO NOT COPY FROM THE BOOK

Resumes for non-traditional students (or students who have been in the work force for over ten years) are usually different from those of traditional students. Typically, a non-traditional student has been in the work force for several years and has held at least one or more professional positions by the time he receives his degree. A non-traditional student may have gaps in his or her resume because of time taken off to raise children or to attend school. Non-traditional students may even be attending school in order to change careers.

While a non-traditional student resume will follow the items outlined in this guide, it may look a little different than that of a traditional college graduate; it may be more than one page; if there are any gaps in work history or if the individual is seeking a career change, it may be a skills based resume instead of a reverse chronological resume; it will always have a Professional Summary but may not have an Objective; it may even highlight experience over education.

Let's take a look at some of the aspects of a non-traditional student resume that may be different from those of a traditional student's:

Length: Non-traditional students have often been in the work force for many years before receiving a Bachelor's or Master's degree, so the length of the resume may be longer than one page. Should your resume be more than one page? Here are some general rules about length:

- A one page resume is best if you have less than ten years of experience, you are seeking a career change and your experience thus far is not relevant to the new career you are pursuing, or if you have held only one or two positions with one employer.
- A two page resume is appropriate if you have more than 10 years of experience that is relevant to your career goal, or if you have technical or engineering skills that must be listed in order to prove your technical knowledge.
- A three page resume is usually reserved for senior level managers or executives who have a long list of leadership accomplishments.
- If you exceed one page, be sure that the text fills at least a third to a half of the last page. If the last page has only a few lines of text, condense those few lines to the previous page.

Professional Summary and Objective: Once you graduate from college, you must include a Professional Summary or Qualifications Profile on your resume (please see previous section on developing one). But you may decide not to include an Objective if you are going to state the objective in your cover letter. If it is not stated in your cover letter however, include it.

Skills Based Resume: Like the name says, a skills based resume will display your experience under skills headings. This allows you to prioritize your accomplishments by importance, relevance, and impact instead of just chronology. This format is useful if the following applies: you are changing careers, re-entering the job market after many years of absence, you wish to emphasize skills from a position you held several jobs before, your most recent position is not incredibly impressive, your responsibility exceeds your job title, or you wish to highlight relevant volunteer experience.

Reverse Chronological Resume: This is the most popular format for a resume. It shows your job titles, employers, and dates of employment in order from most recent to less recent. It is useful if you have no gaps in your work history, you are staying in the same field, or your overall work history shows natural progression and growth towards the job for which you wish to apply.

Both: Combines aspects of both the skills based and the chronological resumes.

Student Leadership Transcript

The Student Leadership Transcript (SLT) is a dynamic way for students to assess, organize, and internalize their accomplishments and experiences outside the classroom. The utilization of the tool enables students to demonstrate their active participation and achievements within Misericordia University's extra-curricular opportunities. The completed transcript may be used to showcase a student's extra-curricular involvement to potential employers and graduate schools. Students are highly encouraged to begin utilizing their personal SLT account starting freshmen year.

It is important to keep in mind that the SLT is a self-reported document that may be accessed and updated anywhere web access is available. The SLT can be used to record, reflect on, and build connections between your academic and co-curricular accomplishments and experiences.

IMPORTANT NOTE:
THESE ARE SAMPLES ONLY.

Step 1

GATHER ALL OF THE EXTRA-CURRICULAR INFORMATION

Hopefully, you've been keeping some type of file for all of the activities you have participated in throughout your time at MU. If you have this type of file, get it out! If not, start making a list of everything you can remember.

For each activity, you will need:

- Title
- Dates (to and from)
- Description of what you did

Step 2

LOG INTO THE SLT BY LOGGING INTO YOUR E-MU ACCOUNT

- Click on the Student Leadership Transcript bar. (Found directly under the LaunchPad.)

ADD NEW ACTIVITY

- Simply click on the Add New Activity box and add an activity.
- Select which category you want the activity to appear under. You can choose from:
 - Leadership
 - Professional and Educational Development
 - Honors and Awards
 - Preprofessional Work Experience
 - Service/Volunteer
- If you are a senior, you do not need to complete the “Reflective Category” as it will not show up on your document. However, if you are a 1st year, sophomore, or junior, entering reflections in this category will help you to recall the experience better in the future.
- Hit the Submit button.
- Repeat for each activity!

TIPS:

- ✓ The SLT is a pass/fail document; there is no such thing as a B with this document- it’s an A or nothing! Even one spelling error, grammatical mistake, or even sounding immature can ruin your chances with an employer or graduate school. Spell-check your items by copying them into a word document first before you put them in the SLT. Or you can work on your SLT while in Mozilla Firefox (which will highlight spelling errors). Also, we strongly recommend that you have the writing center review your document as well.
- ✓ Choose the best fit: Only add an activity under one category even if it can apply to many categories.
- ✓ Your description should create a good picture of what you did. Assume the person reading the document has never been to Misericordia and has no idea about what a “Peer Advocate” is or why the “McAuley Scholarship” is awarded.
- ✓ Quantify whenever possible: How many hours of service did you do? How many children over how many days/hours did you read to? How much money did you fundraise for the Adopt A Family? How many hours of practice and how many games did you compete in as a 4-year member of the baseball team?
- ✓ Use professional words! You are going into a professional world where individuals use a professional vocabulary. You need to get yourself acquainted with that language (see page 9 on “Building Your Professional Vocabulary”) and use it in the SLT, otherwise, you could end up sounding too young or even immature! For example, instead of “professional party” use “networking event,” instead of “I went to a talk on the environment”, how about “I attended a 2 hour workshop on how environmental issues will impact future generations and the changes that we as college students can affect.” See the following real examples (yes, actual students wrote both examples!) – Who would you hire?

BEFORE	AFTER
PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT Guaranteed Placement Program, August 2006 - May 2010 Attended workshops that are intended to assist me in entering the workforce. The program also guarantees that if I do not have a job six months after graduation, I would be able to get a paid internship.	PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT Guaranteed Placement Program, August 2006 - May 2010 Through the Guaranteed Placement Program I have attended many professional development programs and workshops which have enhanced my knowledge of the workforce and have aptly prepared me for graduation. I have participated in resume development workshops and resume critiquing sessions. I have also attended Entrepreneurship Workshops, Diversity Training, and Professional Etiquette Training. Additionally, I have attended Mock Interview Workshops and participated in several Mock Interviews. I have also taken part in Graduate School Preparation and Career Counseling Sessions.
LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE Misericordia Varsity Swimming Team, September 2006 - November 2008 I really enjoyed being part of the swim team as it taught me a lot of teamwork. Since I had to practice a lot and we had many meets during the semester, it taught me how to get everything done in a short amount of time and how to balance my class work with swimming.	LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE Misericordia Varsity Swimming Team, September 2006 - November 2008 I was a member of the Varsity Swimming Team. The events I swam included the 100, 200, 500, and 1000 Freestyle. At the Grove City Invitational, I made the Semi-finals for the 200 Freestyle and came in 14th place. Being a member of the swim team was a large time commitment and included more than nine practices a week, often totaling more than 25 hours. Balancing participation on the swim team with classes and other extra-curricular activities required unwavering dedication, flawless time management, and extreme focus. It taught me how to concentrate my efforts when needed and to handle many different activities at once. I also feel that participating in swimming helped me learn how to push my own boundaries to bring out the best in myself. It taught me the value of hard work, dedication, will power, and team work.
PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE Junior Field, Fall 2008 - Fall 2008 This field required me to observe and also interact with a single classroom. This field was located at Wyoming Valley West in Plymouth, PA.	PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE Junior Field Experience, Fall 2008 - Fall 2008 • Student Observation at Wyoming Area School District • Observed grade eight • Assisted teacher in grading of materials and taught a lesson • Consulted/mentored with the teacher on various classroom management concepts and other educational knowledge.
PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT REFLECTION I feel as though the professional and educational development here at Misericordia has most definitely gave me a excellent experience. (grammar mistakes and does not sound professional) Without the great workshops I would not know what to do with things such as my resume. When I did my mock interview with Julia Edmunds, I recieved a excellent (more grammar mistakes!) evaluation back which helped me to become more confident when interviewing for a real job. Some of the categories in which the interviewer seemed to like was my eye contact, listening skills, specific examples used, and asked appropriate questions. My internship also allowed me to get comfortable working in the real world which will definitely (spelling error) benefit me in the future.	PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT REFLECTION I have learned many of the expectations needed for the future work environment, including time management and team work. The many workshops have taught me invaluable skills for how to conduct myself in a most professional manner. I have also learned to overcome my fears and anxieties about my job search process. When I did my mock interview with Julia Edmunds, the interviewer remarked that I had “excellent listening skills” and used “great examples” from my work experience. Finally, my internship at ParenteBeard and my active participation in the Business Professionals Association allowed me to further develop my professional interactions and experiences. This has enforced my professional behavior as a future job candidate.

REVIEW ALL OF THE ACTIVITIES YOU ADDED SO FAR

- Return to the main page of your SLT and click on “View All Entries.” You should be able to view everything you have done so far (because of Step 3). If you cannot: If you did not select “Yes” for “Place on Final Transcript” on an entry, it will not appear on this page.
 - Review this page and look for the following:
 - spelling errors
 - language that sounds unprofessional or out of character with the rest of the document
 - lack of detail (ask yourself, will someone who never stepped foot on MU’s campus know what this is?)
 - something that you only did once and not for a very long time (remember QUALITY of experience is better than QUANTITY of experience!)
 - A category that has only one item underneath it. If you only have 1 activity under “Honors/Awards and Recognition” move that activity under another category. You’ll see why in step 5.

Step 5

ADD A CATEGORY REFLECTION

- Now is the time to pull it all together, to add a reflection for each category called Category Reflection (Leadership, Professional and Educational Development, Honors, and Awards and Recognition, Preprofessional Work Experience, and Service/Volunteer)
- Click on Add Category Reflection and choose a category. * Note that if you do not have any items under a specific category, you do not need to reflect upon that category!!!
- Choose a category. Write 3-4 sentences to reflect upon all of the items on your SLT that you placed under that category. Not sure what to write or how to reflect on those activities? Here are some possible things to write/reflect upon:
 - What did all of the activities I have placed under that category teach me about myself and about my skills?
 - Did I learn anything about myself from all of them?
 - Did I experience any growth over the course of participating in them?
 - What work-related skills did I pick up? Public speaking, teamwork, doing something from start to finish, multi-tasking?
 - Was this the first time I had major responsibilities?
 - What would have happened if I didn’t do these activities? Would I be the same person?
 - Why am I a better person at the other end of this group of activities?
 - In what capacity did I have to act? As a leader, a mentor, an expert, a resource, a comfort?
 - Did I accomplish things I didn’t know I could accomplish? Did I stretch myself?

Step 6

MEET WITH THE INSALACO CENTER FOR CAREER DEVELOPMENT FOR FINALIZATION

- Make an appointment with an ICCD counselor to have your SLT reviewed and approved for printing. Call extension 6409 to do so. Remember, it won't be available if you do not meet with the ICCD to approve the final document!
- Give yourself enough time to do this as it usually takes 1-3 appointments depending on how much additional work your SLT requires.
- During your "SLT Finalization Appointment," an ICCD counselor will go into your document and press an "OK to Print" button which will send the document to the Registrar's Office to be requested whenever you need it.

Step 7

PRINT YOUR OFFICIAL SLT IN THE REGISTRAR'S OFFICE

- Go to the Registrar's Office to request an official copy of your SLT. (Cost is $1). You can request it from the Registrar's Office for whenever you may need it (for internship and job interviews, graduate school applications, scholarship applications, educational portfolio, job portfolio, summer/part-time work applications, Who's Who applications, Leadership Awards, etc.)

Building Your Professional Vocabulary

It is imperative that you have an arsenal of professional keywords that you can use on your resume and in your SLT. You need to start compiling a list of keywords that is relevant to your career field or major.

What strengths will my major bring to a job?

For those who are having a hard time identifying strengths someone in their major will bring to the workforce, you can meet with your academic advisor and discuss the topic. Students may also do a Google search such as: “careers for English majors” or “career words for history majors.”

How to identify SLT/Resume Keywords:

From the Quintessential Careers website

http://www.quintcareers.com/Quintessential_Careers_Press/Words_Hired_By/Chapter2/page31.html

Ideas for identifying [Leadership Transcript] and Resume Keywords:

- Look for job descriptions in books and job-description software.
- Visit the meetings and Web sites of professional associations in your field to look and listen for current buzzwords.
- If you are working with a recruiter or headhunter, that person can be an excellent source of keyword tips.
- Consult government publications such as The Occupational Outlook Handbook at libraries or www.bls.gov/ooh
- Visit company Web sites. Research and incorporate into your keywords the company culture and values of employers you are targeting. Note especially the company's mission statement and look for ways to quote it in your resume and/or cover letter.
- Imagine you were writing an ad or job description for the type of job you seek; what keywords would you use?
- Scrutinize news stories in trade magazines relevant to your work. Read cutting-edge magazines, such as Fast Company (which is available in the career center's main office).
- Join online discussion groups and chat rooms that relate to your field, and observe the words professionals are using in their discussions.
- Read annual reports from the companies you'd like to work for.
- Conduct informational interviews at companies you want to work for and listen for the jargon and buzzwords that your interviewees use in talking about the company and its jobs.
- Talk to human resources professionals.
- Use Web search engines, such as Google and Yahoo, to search for job descriptions.

University Status Committee, October 2006 - August 2007

Student representative among faculty and staff. A voice to discuss and plan events for University opening day.

LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

Throughout my Leadership experiences at Misericordia University, I have been offered many opportunities to impact the campus and community in a positive light. I have gained invaluable skills such as time management, assertiveness, and self-confidence. I have worked with a wide variety of people, from peers in a work setting to homeless men and women within the shelters. These experiences have enabled me to practice how to effectively communicate with, and meet the needs of, the clients I will serve in the future. I have represented my University on many occasions and have been recognized for my skills, maturity, and professional behavior.

PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE

Children and Youth, Fall 2008 - Spring 2009

Completed 400+ hours at Luzerne County Children and Youth. Assisted staff in daily activities. Supervised parent/child visitations, learned documentation skills, worked with families one on one, assessed homes for safety of child.

Homelessness and Hunger Awareness, August 2006 - May 2009

Each year, I organized and participated in events on campus to raise awareness and funds for Homelessness and Hunger Awareness week. Activities included organizing speakers to present information, blanket drives, fundraising to donate to local shelters, and volunteering at drop-in shelters.

Job Shadowing, May 2008 - July 2008

Shadowed case workers, mobile therapists, TSS workers, etc. at NHS, a mental health agency in Williamsport, PA.

Clear Brook Lodge, Fall 2007 - Summer 2007

Completed 200 hours interning at Clear Brook Lodge, an adolescent drug rehabilitation agency. Learned skills necessary to provide services to the drug and alcohol population. Supervised and led groups. Performed family intake interviews and documentation.

PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

I have participated in numerous internships, both required and volunteer, throughout my college experience. I have completed over 650 hours of unpaid work experience, in the drug and alcohol field, as well as Children and Youth. I also volunteered at a homeless shelter, working directly with men and women in crisis. In addition, I volunteered over the summer months at a Mental Health agency. These experiences have taught me the expectations and work requirements for each position. I have been able to hone in on which populations I prefer to work with in my career, as well as learned the sacrifices necessary to work in these fields. I learned more about myself as a leader as I took on many responsibilities, and was always prompt and professional.

HONORS, AWARDS, AND RECOGNITION

Alpha Delta Mu - Social Work Honor Society, April 2008 - December 2012

Nominated and Inducted into the Social Work Honor Society. Most notably for: academic excellence, leadership ability, a high standard of personal behavior and a dedication to social work practice.

Nominated for this honor by faculty, in recognition of continued academic achievement and student leadership.

Dean's List - 8 semesters, August 2005 - April 2009

Maintained a GPA above 3.5 throughout all four years (8 semesters).

McAuley Scholarship, August 2005 - May 2009

Selected to receive this scholarship for a record of leadership, volunteerism and participation in extracurricular activities throughout high school, and a commitment to serving while in college.

Partners in Service Scholarship, August 2005 - May 2009

Scholarship for a commitment to working with at-risk populations.

HONORS, AWARDS, AND RECOGNITION REFLECTION

In recognition of my commitment to academic excellence, leadership skills, and professional behavior, I have been blessed to be nominated for many awards and honors. These awards and honors have not only made my financial situation less stressful, but also made the hard work and effort worth every minute.

PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Provided clear and detailed notes and supplemental materials to students in the Alternative Learners Program.

Scholars in Service to PA, August 2008 - May 2009

Completed 300+ hours of community service within 8 months - ranging from programs with low-income housing to volunteering with Campus Ministry.

Counseling Center Student Advisory Board, August 2007 - May 2008

Acted as a liaison between the Counseling Center and the student body. Organized and participated in activities to raise awareness about the services provided at the University.

Soup Kitchen Volunteer, October 2005 - May 2008

Visited the local soup kitchen to help prepare and serve lunch to over 300 community members in need.

Circle K, August 2005 - May 2006

Service and fund raising projects throughout year to benefit local needy.

SERVICE/VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

My volunteer experiences at Misericordia University have been the most influential and rewarding for me. Being a part of a group, or individually, impacting someone's life for the better has solidified my reasons for becoming a Social Worker. Through fund raisers and service hours, I have noticed how even the little things in life can mean the world to someone in need. My goal is to continue this long into my professional life.

Sophomore Field Experience, Fall 2008 - Fall 2008

Student Observation at Heights Elementary School in Wilkes-Barre, PA. -Observed first grade. -Assisted teacher in grading materials. -Completed required projects and journaling for completion of the course.

PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

By observing a series of education professionals at a variety of schools I have gained hands-on experience that a college classroom cannot teach. Student observations reassured me that I want to pursue a career in the teaching field.

HONORS, AWARDS, AND RECOGNITION

McAuley Scholarship, August 2007 - May 2011

Selected to receive this scholarship for a record of leadership, volunteerism and participation in extracurricular activities throughout high school, and a commitment to serving while at the University.

Kappa Delta Pi - Education Honor Society, April 2010 - May 2011

Nominated and inducted into the Education Honor Society. Most notable for: academic excellence, leadership ability, a high standard of personal and professional behavior and a dedication to the classroom.

Deans List - 4 semesters, Spring 2009 - Fall 2010

Maintained a GPA above 3.5 for two years at the University.

Scholar-Athlete, November 2007 - April 2008

Nominated and selected for maintaining a GPA of 3.0 or higher and being a productive member in the classroom and on the court.

HONORS, AWARDS, AND RECOGNITION REFLECTION

Due to my commitment to academic excellence, leadership skills, and professional behavior, I have been blessed to be nominated for several awards and honors. Such awards have not only lessened the financial aspect of attending college, but also made my hard work and effort worth it.

PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Mock Interview, February 2011 - February 2011

Workshop to prepare for what to expect when interviewing - how to dress, what to bring, questions to prepare. Followed by a mock interview with an outside resource, and evaluated on performance.

Guaranteed Placement Program, August 2007 - May 2011

Through the Guaranteed Placement Program, I have attended many professional development workshops that prepared me for the real-world after graduation. I have attended the resume workshop, diversity workshop, financial fitness workshop, etiquette workshop and mock interview workshop. Each workshop successfully prepared me for the workforce, and I am now able to leave Misericordia University confident in my knowledge and ability to be an active professional.

Financial Fitness, Life after College Workshop, Spring 2010 - Spring 2010

Workshop to discuss how to establish one's self financially after college (i.e. salary, credit, benefits etc.).

Etiquette Workshop, Fall 2010 - Fall 2010

Workshop to discuss how to present yourself in a formal situation - related to work and real-life scenarios.

Diversity Workshop, Fall 2009 - Fall 2009

Workshop to discuss diversity issues and biases in the work place and how to avoid them in a professional setting.

Resume Workshop, Fall 2008 - Fall 2008

Workshop to learn how to build and produce an "eye-catching" resume.

First Year Experience, Fall 2007 - Fall 2007

Freshman requirement. This course allowed us to get to know the campus, staff and other students by completing various class projects and interviews.

PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT REFLECTION

Due to the Guaranteed Place Program I have developed a confidence level much higher than when I first attended Misericordia University about what to do and how to become successful after graduation. Thanks to the resume workshop, etiquette workshop and the mock interview, I can enter the workforce with no doubts or fears, but confidence.

SERVICE/VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE

After School Tutoring at Dan Flood, January 2010 - April 2010

As part of an Education class, I served as a tutor for Title I students at the after school program at Dan Flood Elementary. The tutoring sessions consisted of completing school work, repetition of math facts to increase mental math and reading for at least fifteen minutes a day to increase comprehension, accuracy and fluency.

VISION Volunteer, March 2010 - March 2010

Helped prepare and serve dinner to homeless male community members.

Circle of Friends, January 2010 - April 2010

Completed 20+ hours working with University students who have down syndrome, cerebral palsy or other health impairments. As a group, we went to campus activities, sports games, watched movies, played board games and made crafts. This was a project to understand discrepancy between their ages and where they are at mentally as well as develop age-appropriate activities and make appropriate accommodations.

Note-Shareer, Fall 2009 - Fall 2010

Provided clear and detailed notes and useful materials to students in the Alternative Learners Program.

First Book, Fall 2009 - Spring 2010

As an active member in the Education Club, I went to Heights Elementary School and read a book to the children. During this time, the children who attended the First Book, received a free book that was donated in hopes to encourage our children to read.

McGlynn Learning Center, Fall 2007 - Spring 2008

Provided aid to children in the after school program in need of tutoring and extra help on homework, studying and/or projects (with volunteer hours).

Loaves and Fishes, March 2008 - March 2008

I volunteered for a week on an "alternative spring break" in Sacramento, California to work with homeless adults and children. I served food in the kitchen, tutored children at Mustard Seed School as well as just talked to and got to know the people who needed these services.

SERVICE/VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

My volunteer experience on and off campus has been the most influential and rewarding for me. Being a part of a group, or individually, and impacting a person's life for the better reassured my reasons for becoming a teacher. Through fundraisers completed by the Education Club or volunteer service hours, I have observed that the little things in life mean the most to people. I hope that, after University, I can continue my service into my professional life.

LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE

Misericordia Student Occupational Therapy Association (MSOTA), September 2004 - May 2009

Throughout my five years, I actively participated in this association. I served as the secretary of the organization my senior year. Other service projects and activities to promote OT that I was involved in include: Backpack Awareness Program presentations, CEO Thanksgiving and Easter Food Drives, St. Joseph's Center, Adaptive Equipment Display, Dallas Senior Center, YMCA Thanksgiving Feast, VISION Homeless Shelter lunches, Kits for Underprivileged Children, OT-PT Volleyball Game for Charity, and MU Homecoming Parade.

Pi Theta Epsilon, February 2007 - May 2009

As a member of the Occupational Therapy Honor Society, I participated in a variety of on-campus activities to promote the profession of Occupational Therapy. These activities included: Adaptive Equipment Display Table, 'Grip Strength' contest and Dynamometer display table, Health Summit Forum contribution, and Bake Sale. Also, during my senior year, I served as the secretary of this organization and helped to facilitate the activities of the club.

Peer Learning Assistant, September 2006 - May 2008

In this position, I served as a peer tutor to fellow college students who needed additional instruction and assistance with their coursework. Also, with the extra training and workshops I completed to become a peer learning assistant, I had the ability to offer one-on-one tutoring sessions for students with special learning needs. As a student coordinator of the Peer Learning Assistants, I helped to facilitate the creation of a resource pamphlet for the Learning Resource Center, informational tutoring presentation for the faculty, and academic workshops, such as a Finals Preparation Workshop. Lastly, in this position, I served as an AIM coordinator and assisted staff members in remedial academic workshops for freshmen students.

Misericordia University Concert Band, May 2004 - May 2008

As a member of this group, I participated in weekly practices and a concert at the end of each semester. Also, I was a member of the flute section and a soloist during the concerts. I enjoyed this experience because music and playing flute are two activities that are intrinsically gratifying to me.

Substance Abuse Peer Educators, September 2006 - May 2008

As a substance abuse peer educator, it was my responsibility to promote safe choices and alternative fun activities for the college campus. As the student coordinator of this group my senior year, I facilitated programs such as National Smoke-Out Day, Free Shots, and Tombstone Awareness Program in conjunction with the Northeast Pennsylvania Traffic Control Board.

Speak Out Loud Committee, September 2005 - May 2008

As a member of this committee, I collaborated with other students, faculty, and staff to facilitate forums on issues of social justice, politics, and university-based topics. With each forum, we invited speakers from the outside community and university campus to share their viewpoints on certain issues. These forums were provided in conjunction with coursework from a variety of classes.

Alcohol Advisory Board, January 2007 - May 2007

As a student member of this organization, I met with other students, faculty, and staff to discuss current issues related to alcohol use on the university campus. In addition, I was a member of the Programming Subcommittee which met to plan informational sessions and fun alternative activities for students of the college community.

Who's Who Committee, January 2007 - March 2007

As a student member of this committee, I participated in the screening and selection process of applicable candidates for the Who's Who recognition awards.

Student Government Association - Academic Coordinator, Spring 2005 - Fall 2006

I served on the Student Government Executive Board as the Academic Coordinator. In this position, I attended SGA meetings, facilitated service projects, served as a member of multiple committees on campus, and volunteered my time at the Dallas Harvest Fest. This position served as a positive learning experience and enabled me to improve my assertiveness, interpersonal skills, and communication skills.

Leadership Workshop, September 2006 - September 2006

This four-hour workshop provided participants with vital information on 'How to be a leader'. Through multiple presentations and handouts, we were presented with key strategies and methods to become effective leaders in our daily lives.

LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

Throughout my five years at Misericordia University, my leadership experiences have enhanced my ability to proactively work with others. By engaging in these activities, I have acquired a better sense of self confidence and a more effective means to communicate my thoughts and beliefs. These experiences have provided me with multiple opportunities to fulfill my desire to help and enable others. All of these leadership opportunities have made me a well-rounded and stronger individual and contributed to my personal and academic development.

PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE

Shadowed Nutritional Biochemist, July 2008 - July 2008

In California, I had the opportunity to shadow Sue Dieffenbach. She is a Nutritional Biochemist that has her own practice called Perk Up. While shadowing Sue in her practice, I sat in on several patient consultations to monitor weight loss. To be able to monitor the weight loss I learned how to use a Basic Metabolic Rate Scanner and was allowed to administer the test to several patients. Also, I participated in a weekly group meeting that takes place at the practice for members who wanted additional information on healthy eating. At this particular group meeting, a chef came in and discussed different ways of cooking to reduce fat intake and promote the eating regiment the patients were on. From Sue I learned and value the idea of looking at the holistic nature of a patient. It is important to take everything into account to fully understand where and what patients are struggling with. Also, I learned the importance of building rapport with patients because some of the sessions I sat in on were talking about life and its stresses.

Shadowed Nurse Practitioner, July 2008 - July 2008

During this past summer, I arranged to travel to Naples, Florida to shadow Nancy Hahn A.R.N.P. in the Associates in Medical & Surgical Dermatology practice. I focused primarily on shadowing Mrs. Hahn, but I also had the opportunity to shadow David S. Goodman M.D., Michael S. Tucker M.D., and Jefferey Neef P.A. on a smaller scale. I was able to participate in removing pre-cancerous and cancerous moles, excision of an irregular mole termed to be cancerous and observed several charts of basal and squamous cell carcinomas. I had firsthand exposure to patients that recently underwent surgery to remove the basal or squamous cell carcinomas from various areas of the body. I was able to interact with patients, an invaluable experience, and learn how a physician's office operates. I was able to see writing of prescriptions and the struggle individuals go through with paying for them, which made me think of how valuable my research was my sophomore year of college. I also was able to participate in educating the physicians, Nurse Practitioner, Physician Assistant, and Nurses about Ticks because a patient had a possible Tick bite and Floridians are not very knowledgeable of the species because Ticks do not inhabit Florida.

Shadowed Medical Doctor, July 2008 - July 2008

William R. Kellas (Bill), PhD, is a writer, lecturer, author and radio show host. Dr. Kellas is the author of three books, "Thriving in a Toxic World," "Surviving The Toxic Crisis" and "The Toxic Immune Syndrome Cookbook," while having a Ph.D. in Nutritional Biochemistry and is a Naturopathic Doctor (ND). I had the opportunity to shadow this influential physician during my stay in California. I was exposed to an alternative way of treatment with supplements instead of mainline drugs. With this exposure I learned that all avenues in treatment should be considered for the overall well-being of the patient. When I sat in on patient sessions, within the first 10 minutes Dr. Kellas knew what was troubling the patient. I strive to be the same way and know everything there is to know about cancer. I learned it is pivotal to know aspects of medicine that normally would be thought of as unrelated, but really are somehow. "Some way or another everything is connected," he would state. Dr. Kellas knew every metabolic pathway of the human body and I strive to be as knowledgeable as him some day when I am practicing Oncology.

Shadowed Family Medical Doctor, July 2008 - July 2008

In California I was able to shadow a Family Practitioner whose emphasis is in alternative cancer therapy. Instead of treating cancer patients with mainline treatments such as chemotherapy or radiation, Dr. Winkler administers Insulin Potentiation Therapy with customized vitamins, mineral, and supplement therapies. Dr. Winkler has completed extensive research of the insulin therapy and stated that it was very effective in fight the disease of cancer. This experience was very special to me because I am striving to become an Oncologist and by having the exposure to various treatments that could be administered it opened my eyes to the potential research that could be conducted for further treatments. I also have the desire to become a researcher so this opportunity exposed me to the progression of research that is then utilized in physicians' practices. I was also able to have direct patient interaction as they were getting their therapy and learn the instrumentation used in the process. The overall idea of insulin being a cancer treatment was fascinating to me and I was blessed to be able to shadow a progressive physician like Dr. Winkler.

PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE

PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

By shadowing a series of medical professionals I have gained hands on experience that a classroom cannot teach and the reaffirmation that I whole-heartedly want to pursue a career in the medical field, specifically in Oncology.

HONORS, AWARDS, AND RECOGNITION

Strategic Initiative Competitive Grants Committee Member, January 2009 - January 2009

I was appointed a position on the committee for the Strategic Initiative Competitive Grants Program by the Dean of Students. The Strategic Committee consists of two faculty, two staff, and two students and I have the privilege of being one of those members. This committee meets to discuss grants submitted by various academic programs at Misericordia University and ultimately decides if the programs obtain the allotted amount of money they request from the Strategic Committee's account. My role is to thoroughly read all of the grants that are submitted and bring comments as well as concerns to the committee meetings for further discussion.

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges Honoree, February 2009 - February 2009

I was one of twenty students from Misericordia University to be submitted to the Who's Who program to be honored as a leader and service provider on campus.

Presentation to Council Misericordia, April 2007 - April 2007

I conducted a research project on the Misericordia University campus with Dr. Frank Dipino, in relation with SCHOTT Glass Company. I had the opportunity to present in front of Council Misericordia. I discussed what my research entailed in front of local business leaders in the community along with faculty and staff members that encompassed the Council.

HONORS, AWARDS, AND RECOGNITION REFLECTION

Being recognized for any award is a true privilege. I have worked extremely hard during my college years and to be able to present in front of Council Misericordia my first research project was a blessing. To then be further honored with being recognized by the Misericordia staff, faculty, and fellow students as a student to represent the University in the Who's Who Among American Universities and Colleges is an honor in itself.

PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Researcher, August 2008 - May 2009

I am currently engaging in a research project with two of my colleagues. The research project involves the administration of an herbal supplement, Milk Thistle, through injection. We are in progress of injecting 30 mice daily with Milk Thistle or a 0.9% Saline Solution (placebo) while completing urine analyses of each group. After a month incubation period histochemical analyses will be performed to document the effects of the Milk Thistle on the mice. To further document the effects of the herbal supplement, we will compare the impact on mice with cirrhosis of the liver due to the administration of alcohol to the mice. Along with the specific research aspects of the project, daily maintenance is required to keep the animal room and cages sanitary. We are still in the incubation period of injection and hope to obtain conclusive results with the project.

Researcher, October 2006 - November 2007

Beginning in my sophomore year, I participated in an 18-month research grant with SCHOTT Glass Company. The grant was titled, Novel Methods for Understanding Protein Loss due to Protein Absorption within Pharmaceutical Packaging. The research tackled a significant question facing health care systems today—minimizing the cost of drugs and therapies. I had the opportunity to test absorbencies of solutions to assay at which concentration the solution would adhere to a protein-coated glass vial. By assaying the concentration levels of a "model drug," Horseradish Peroxidase, adhering to the vial, I could then determine the quantity of drug that could be saved. In relation to the real world the amount of drug that can be saved would amount to cost savings for providers and patients. By conducting the research, I gained exposure to using various laboratory equipment and software, like a 96- well microplate reader and the Gen5 software. Because I conducted my research on the Misericordia University campus in relation to SCHOTT Glass Company, I presented to Council Misericordia what my research entailed. I presented in front of local business leaders in the community along with faculty and staff that encompassed the Council.

Biology Club Vice President, August 2007 - May 2009

As Vice-President of the Biology Club at Misericordia University I assist the President in creating and organizing fundraisers and service projects. I assist in making signs on upcoming meetings and contacting members via email to notify them on upcoming events of the club. I reserve rooms on campus when needed for programs put on by the club and get the fundraisers approved by Student Activities to then begin selling. Also, my duties are to get the required paperwork signed to notify the proper faculty of the fundraisers and service projects going to be done by the club. I also assist the Treasurer and Secretary in their duties to assure everything gets accomplished. One service project accomplished by the club entailed cleaning a fish tank by scrubbing it and providing new plants and fish to the tank that was donated to the science building in 1990. Another service project done was cleaning an area behind the science building of trash and larger rocks while getting it mulched to begin planting in the spring, wildflowers for a new garden. The Biology club is very interested in keeping the Earth healthy and preserving natural areas with native plants.

Biology Camp Counselor, June 2007 - June 2007

Over the summer for three days, the Biology Department holds a biology camp on the Misericordia campus for high school students to attend that are interested in biology. The first day the students move into the dorms and then they get a tour of the science building on campus, with the added bonus of seeing the cadaver lab. The next day consists of a hike in Rickett's Glen State Park while stopping periodically to do scientific experiments like water testing. As a camp counselor, I assisted with everything in regards to the students, from giving the tour around the campus and science building to walking behind the group while hiking to ensure everyone was safe.

PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT REFLECTION

I have had the privilege of working with Dr. Frank Dipino and Dr. Anthony Serino on extremely interesting research projects. I enjoyed my first research project with Dr. Dipino so much that I chose to complete another research project with Dr. Serino for no credit with two of my fellow students who needed the research project for credit. I enjoy researching greatly and will continue it throughout my professional career in the medical field.

SERVICE/VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE

Scholars in Service to Pennsylvania, Fall 2008 - Spring 2012

SISPA is an organization that recognizes students for completing 300 or 450 service hours that are completed over a one year span. Through this program, I have chosen to complete 300+ volunteer hours each term. The program encourages members to focus their service on one or two large projects, but I was also able to spread out my time amongst smaller projects of worthy cause. While in the program I spent much of my time volunteering to watch and work with children, shovel snow, rake leaves, clean up neighborhoods, tutor and educate peers, host clothing/toy/book/food drives, and work at a camp for children with special needs. Each experience offered me much of the same life lessons, but each experience also presented its own individual lessons too. As a SISPA I was required to complete logs exploring my many service hours and attend regular meetings.

Campus Ministry Board Member, September 2008 - May 2011

For three years, I was a board member and actively participated in various aspects of Campus Ministry. In 2010, I was the student coordinator for the Sacristans and a member of the SEARCH retreat. The following year, I served as the student coordinator for the College Kids for Girls Program. In addition, I continued to volunteer for other ministries, such as overnight services at the Catherine McAuley Women's Shelter and College Kids for Girls.

Habitat for Humanity, March 2010 - March 2010

I traveled to Wichita Falls, TX with a group of my peers over our Spring Break to participate in Habitat for Humanity for a week. During these seven days we all helped to erect the walls of several houses along with all of the roof trusses. We worked with site supervisors from the Habitat organization who taught us the skills necessary to perform these tasks. Also, we were openly welcome by the community who sponsored our lunch and dinner each night of the week.

REACH Homeless Shelter, November 2009 - February 2010

Through the REACH Homeless Shelter, I had the opportunity to assist other students and volunteers in moving a homeless family and donated materials into a single-family home. In addition, my friend and I organized a collection to gather donations of clothing and toys for this family throughout the holiday season.

Jamaica Service Learning Experience, January 2010 - January 2010

I traveled to Jamaica with a group of 10 students and 3 chaperones to do service with the people of the Manchester area. Went to a nursing home, orphanages, Boscov's home for boys and mustard seed. We also visited with some individuals that are part of the church community that were elderly or ill.

Alternative Learner's Program (ALP) Notetaker, May 2006 - August 2008

Every week, I turned in my notes for Western Civilization I and II to the ALP office for them to copy and hand out to students in my class with a learning disability. I think this is a good program because it allows those students with learning disabilities that would typically struggle in class simply because they had trouble taking notes and keeping pace to have the opportunity to succeed.

Service Learning Classes, September 2007 - May 2009

As a student at Misericordia University, I had the opportunity to participate in community service activities in conjunction with different academic classes. These classes included: Physics I and II, Human Performance I and II, and Occupations I and II. Some of the service learning experiences included: building an entrance ramp for a handicapped individual in the community with the help of CEO, participating in the Back Mountain Trails program, visiting and playing with children at a local daycare center, bowling at the local JCC, visiting the Salvation Army Center, and participating in a knitting mentorship program with an elderly individual at the local JCC.

SERVICE/VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

Participating in a variety of volunteer activities throughout college provided me with the opportunity to develop my interpersonal skills by working with others to meet a common goal. I enjoyed engaging in these experiences because I was able to meet and interact with a variety of people, all of whom contributed to my learning experiences and personal development.

LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE

Peer Tutor-Medical-Surgical Nursing, August 2009 - December 2009

Provided assistance to peers struggling with junior level medical-surgical nursing lecture.

Peer Tutor- Biology, Psychology, Calculus, January 2007 - May 2008

Provided assistance to peers struggling with classes such as biology, psychology, and calculus. Encouraged independent thinking and engaged discussion of the material.

LEADERSHIP EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

My leadership activities have developed my character throughout my college experience by encouraging me to take initiative and lead a group of peers effectively. Peer tutoring helped me reinforce past knowledge while improving speaking and people skills. I also developed many leadership qualities through helping peers.

PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE

Resident Assistant at Meadows Manor Assisted Living Facility in Dallas, PA, October 2007 - Summer 2010

Provide care to residents through help with activities of daily living. Administer medications, obtain vital signs, and perform dressing changes.

Care Giver at Comfort Keepers in Mountaintop, PA, January 2007 - August 2007

Provided care to clients by assisting activities of daily living. Provided in-home companionship through the use of therapeutic communication.

PREPROFESSIONAL WORK EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

My preprofessional work experience has helped me feel comfortable and work efficiently in health care settings. Working at the Meadows helped build my confidence and autonomy in nursing. I also practiced good habits of medication administration and learned the process of office work. I believe my preprofessional work experience has also helped to enhance effective use of therapeutic communication and my interpersonal skills.

HONORS, AWARDS, AND RECOGNITION

Partners in Nursing Scholarship, August 2006 - May 2010

Academic scholarship offered to nursing students.

Sigma Theta Tau Honor Society, February 2010 - May 2010

Honor Society for nurses that recognizes superior achievement, the development of leadership qualities, fosters high professional standards, encourages creative work, and strengthens commitment to the ideas and purposes of the profession.

McAuley Leadership Scholarship, August 2006 - May 2010

Scholarship that recognizes leadership, volunteerism, and participation in extracurricular activities.

Honors Program, August 2006 - May 2010

Writing-intensive classes, critical thinking skills, and intellectual discussions through Honors Explorations were provided to challenge my thinking. Attended educational field trips to historical cities and museums to broaden my horizons. Completed Honors Capstone paper on inconsistencies surrounding the determination of brain death.

Misericordia University Dean's List- 4 semesters, August 2006 - May 2008

Award offered to students with superior academic standing.

HONORS, AWARDS, AND RECOGNITION REFLECTION

My honors, awards, and recognition have taught me that hard work and determination truly are appreciated by others. These awards make me appreciate how far I have come. I have also developed excellent professional standards and a passion for the nursing profession in order to be accepted into such an honorable society as Sigma Theta Tau.

PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

CPR/AED for the Professional Rescuer and Healthcare Provider, August 2009 - August 2011

Provided skills needed during emergency situations either in the hospital setting or in the community. Provided me with confidence in my nursing skills and gave me information to act effectively in an emergency setting.

The Student Development Transcript is a student generated, self-reported record of a student's learning experience and achievement outside of the classroom. Misericordia University does not guarantee, and is not responsible or liable for, the accuracy or truthfulness of any information appearing in this document.

Community Health Clinical, Spring 2010 - Spring 2010

Gained a greater understanding of community-oriented nursing by working with various organizations such as Hospice of the Sacred Heart, Volunteers in Medicine, Nurse Family Partnership, and Geisinger South's in-patient hospice unit. I gained a greater understanding of the importance and need of community-oriented nursing which focuses on health promotion and disease prevention.

Student Nurses Association of Pennsylvania (SNAP), August 2006-May 2010

Official nurse's association of Misericordia University. Schedule fundraisers to raise money for the group and community programs. Perform community health screenings and participate in Health Walks. Provided me with a professional network and appreciation for my career. Provided support and resources to broaden my horizons and develop a professional career.

Wyoming Valley Health Care System Kindred Unit Clinical, March 2010 - May 2010

Care for long-term, high-acuity patients in either respiratory failure or in need of extensive wound care. Gained confidence caring for ventilated patients with tracheostomies. Also gained confidence performing extensive wound care.

Honors Capstone Paper, August 2009 - April 2010

My honors capstone paper focused on the inconsistencies surrounding the determination of brain death related to a lack of national standards for such a determination. This paper will be presented in April 2010 to the Honors Program as my senior honors thesis.

Geisinger Wyoming Valley Hospital Pediatric Unit Clinical, Spring 2009 - Spring 2009

Provided care to pediatric patients through the use of the nursing process. Provided comfort and education to parents and family members of the pediatric patient. I gained head-to-toe assessment skills and learned to evaluate lab results. I also gained documentation, organizational, and time management skills which are priceless to a successful nurse.

Geisinger Wyoming Valley Hospital Med-Surg Clinical, Spring 2009 - Spring 2009

Provided care to patients with various medical-surgical ailments. Became more familiar with equipment frequently used on the unit and gained confidence in charting and lab interpretation.

Wyoming Valley Health Care System Telemetry Unit Clinical, Fall 2009 - Fall 2009

Provided care to patients with various cardiac-related problems. Performed role of medication nurse to entire wing of the unit. Performed charting and advanced lab interpretation skills. Became more familiar with cardiac monitors and evaluation of rhythm strips and gained a greater understanding of cardiac pathology and nursing interventions to promote cardiac health.

Geisinger Wyoming Valley Hospital OB/GYN Clinical, Fall 2009 - Fall 2009

Provided care to laboring mothers, newborn infants, and post-partum mothers. Assisted in vaginal delivery and observed Cesarean section. Gained greater understanding of women's health and newborn care. Became more familiar with fetal monitoring devices and enjoyed assisting the nurses with their tasks.

VA Medical Center Psychiatric Clinical, Fall 2008 - Fall 2008

Practiced the use of therapeutic communication in order to provide optimal care to patients. Organized group activities to initiate communication and gain insight to psychiatric disorders. Provided one-on-one care to at-risk patients. This clinical provided me with insight into psychiatric disorders and honed my therapeutic communication skills.

VA Medical Center Clinical, Fall 2008 - Fall 2008

Provided care to long-term residents through activities such as bathing, changing, feeding, range of motion exercises, and patient teaching. Gained invaluable assessment skills throughout the clinical experience.

PROFESSIONAL AND EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT REFLECTION

My professional and educational development have helped me gain confidence in the hospital setting and further develop critical thinking skills. My honors capstone paper stretched my thinking and challenged me on an entirely new intellectual level. My eyes were opened to areas of healthcare that need improvement with the hope that improvement will be made within the near future.

SERVICE/VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCENortheast Regional Cancer Institute Breast Cancer Seminar, January 2010 - April 2010

Data gathered on women in Luzerne County related to breast health and cancer risks will be presented in a seminar held in April 2010 at Misericordia University which will be open to the public. Working on this project with other nursing students at Misericordia and the NE Regional Cancer Institute helped me understand the importance of primary health care and the importance of outreach programs for the public related to health care issues.

Misericordia University History Club, Fall 2009 - Spring 2010

Helped Misericordia's History Club raise money via 50/50 raffles and various fundraisers. The History Club has flourished over the past few years because of fundraising help and volunteerism which I am glad to say I participated in.

SPCA Honors Volunteer Activity, Spring 2007 - Spring 2007

Volunteered an afternoon at the local SPCA facility in order to give back to the community. Presented my volunteer experience during an Honors meeting. I enjoyed volunteering at the SPCA because it was nice to give back to the community and help animals in need.

SERVICE/VOLUNTEER EXPERIENCE REFLECTION

My service/volunteer experience has helped me give back to the community. I feel fortunate to be able to give some of my time to a community that has helped me.
